The Dilemmas of China's Political Science in the Context of the Rise of China.

The Localization of Chinese Political Studies

Abstract: The rise of China has changed the global balance of power, which could also have an impact on the international development of political science scholarship. Very little attention, however, has been paid to the impact of China's rise on the development of political science within China. This article examines how the rise of China has posed serious challenges to political studies in China. It addresses critical issues concerning the contemporary features and strategic direction of the discipline. It first analyzes three different intellectual production models that constitute China's political studies and discusses three different intellectual production models. It then highlights the dilemmas that political science faces in China, and exposes problems of and obstacles to its development, such as an unwarranted bureaucratization of the scholarly community, and, critically, the absence of democracy and academic freedom. The paper examines and engages several ongoing debates on China's political studies. In responding to the debate over whether it is China's political studies to move towards scientification, this paper presents four arguments for a balance between science and the humanities and outlines four strategies for achieving this balance. It also examines the debate on the localization of Chinese political science, the doctrine of China's uniqueness; and points out that the rise of China requires Chinese political studies to be cosmopolitan, global and universal, but the current regime is interested in reproducing the discourse of China's uniqueness to maintain its political status. Value creation and value capture with frictions.

Abstract: We use a formal value-based model to study how frictions-incomplete linkages in the industry value chain that keep some parties from meeting and transacting-affect value creation and value capture. Frictions arise from search and switching costs and moderate the intensity of industry rivalry and the efficiency of the market. We find that firms with a competitive advantage prefer industries with less, but not zero, frictions. We show that rivalry interacts nontrivially with other competitive forces to affect industry attractiveness. Firm heterogeneity emerges naturally when we introduce resource development. Heterogeneity falls with frictions, but the sustainability of competitive advantage increases. Overall, we show that introducing frictions makes value-based models very effective at integrating analyses at the industry, firm, and resource levels. Copyright © 2011 John Wiley & Sons, Ltd. Abstract: The claim by China experts that the Chinese state lacks the capability to practice pro-active industrial policy throws China's future into doubt. This article argues the contrary by examining the development of the Chinese automobile industry and the evolution of its industrial policy since 1978. The central state's policy may have been ineffective at first, but continued to improve, layer-by-layer, by taking into account results of local experiments, and being propelled by a strong catch-up consensus providing performance standards to establish national industries. China's learning process thus renders its industrial policy model effective in the long term. [ABSTRACT FROM PUBLISHER]

Abstract: The digital elevation model (DEM) produced by the Shuttle Radar Topographic Mission (SRTM) has provided important fundamental data for topographic analysis in many fields. The recently released global digital elevation model (GDEM) produced by the Advanced Spaceborne Thermal Emission and Reflection Radiometer (ASTER) has higher spatial resolution and wider coverage than the SRTM3 DEM, and thus may be of more value to researchers. Taking two typical study areas—the Loess Plateau and the North China Plain of China—as an example, this article assesses the accuracy of the SRTM3 DEM and ASTER GDEM by collecting ground control points from topographical maps. It is found that both the SRTM3 DEM and the ASTER GDEM are far more accurate for the North China Plain than for the Loess Plateau. For the Loess Plateau, the accuracy of the ASTER GDEM is similar to that of the SRTM3 DEM; whereas for the North China Plain, it is much worse than that of the SRTM3 DEM. Considering the negative bias of the ASTER GDEM for flat or gentle regions, we improve its accuracy by adding the difference of the mean value between the SRTM3 DEM and ASTER GDEM for the North China Plain; then, the root mean square error (RMSE) of ± 7.95 m from the original ASTER GDEM is improved to ± 5.26 m, which demonstrates that it is a simple but useful way to improve the accuracy of the ASTER GDEM in flat or gentle regions. The screenshot displays the Shandong University Discovery Service search results for the keyword "china". The interface includes a search bar at the top with the text "Searching: Discovery Service for SHANDONG UNIV" and a search button labeled "检索". Below the search bar, there are radio buttons for "关键字" (selected), "标题", and "作者", and links for "精确检索" and "检索历史记录".

On the left side, there is a sidebar with the Shandong University logo and the text "SHANDONG UNIVERSITY 1901". Below the logo, there is a section titled "16611430 结果用于..." and a section titled "精确检索结果" with checkboxes for "全文 (在线)", "学术 (同行评审) 期刊", and "图书馆收藏中有提供". There is also a date range filter set to "1000" to "2012" and a "更新" button. Below this, there is a "Source Types" section with checkboxes for "所有结果", "学术理论期刊", "期刊", "新闻", "书籍/专著", and "评论".

The main search results area shows two results, both labeled "学术期刊" (Academic Journal). The first result is titled "Japan's Response to China's Rise: Regional Engagement, Global Containment, Dangers of Collision" by Hughes, Christopher W., published in International Affairs, Jul., 2009, Vol. 85 Issue 4, p837-856, 20p. The second result is titled "The Politics of Land Development in Urbanizing China" by Sargeson, Sally (Reviewed by), published in China Journal, The, No. 66, Jul 2011: 145-152. Both results include a "添加到文件夹" (Add to folder) button and a "相关性" (Relevance) score represented by a green bar.

On the right side, there is a sidebar with a red border containing a "Discover More..." section. This section includes a "详细资料" (Detailed information) link, a checked checkbox for "Discovery Service for SHANDONG UNIV EBSCO Discovery Service", and two unchecked checkboxes for "General resource" (Engineering Index (EI/Compendex) and KUKE Digital Music Library (China)). There is also a "General resource" section with a warning icon, listing "ProQuest: ProQuest Dissertations and Theses - Abstracts (XML Gateway)" and "CNKI: China Academic Journals (CAJ)". A "更新" (Update) button is at the bottom of this sidebar. Below the sidebar, there is a "Related Images" section with a "更新" button.

UNIVERSITY OF LIVERPOOL

Interface vs. content

After months of investigating both products, the Liverpool librarians chose EDS, beginning the 2010 academic calendar with the EDS search box prominent on its homepage, right beneath the library catalog. Three factors were key to the decision: the interface, the content, and customization.

Liverpool's Discovery, Library Journal,
Feb 15 2011.

Galileo Galilei(1564-1642)，義大利物理學家、數學家、天文學家及哲學家，為科學革命中重要人物。他最先有系統的研究等加速運動，奠定了牛頓運動定律的堅實架構。伽利略的成就被後世譽為「現代觀測天文學之父」、「現代物理學之父」、及「現代科學之父」。

All truths are easy to understand once they are discovered; the point is to discover them.

一旦被找到，所有的真理都是容易认识和理解的；要点在于去发现它们。

Thank You
